Business Consulting

•A highly fragmented market, with 17,000 players (85% with less than 3 employees).

•Size is a key enabler. In 2012 firms with over 50 headcounts have reported a much more significant growth compared to average (11,2% vs 4,7%). However, "micro" firms are confirming their growth path (+ 4,8%).

•Total 2012 industry turnover exceeded 3 billion Euros (ie. 0,2% of Italy's PIL) with a 2,5% decrease compared to 2011

•Italian market for consulting services is smaller than in Germany, UK and France.

•Expanding presence outside of Italy is key. Market data show that in 2012 Italian consulting firms have compensated a lower internal demand with increased volumes of international business

IT Services

Market shrinked in 2012 due to less financial resources available

In the banking, insurance and manufacturing sectors, the following trends have been reported:

- Banks have reduced their expenditure for IT Services in 2012 because of the financial crisis. Total expenditure has been less than 4 billion/€
- In the insurance sector, life insurance companies have reduced their IT expenditure in 2011 (-18%), whereas general insurance companies have reported an increase (+2,6%).
- A large part of the IT expenditure has been devoted implementing regulatory compliance programs
